CONSTIPATION

"For over nine years I suffered with chronic constipation and during this time had to take an average of one box of medicine every 24 hours before I could have any action on my bowels. Happily I found Cascarets, and today I am a well man. During the five years before I used Cascarets I had a great deal of trouble with internal piles. Thanks to Cascarets I am free from all that this morning. You can see the result of this medicine."—J. F. HARRIS, New York, N. Y.

INFANT'S DEATH.
The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jones, of 18 Fulton avenue, died Monday. The funeral which was private, was held at the home at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, and the interment was made in Cedar Hill cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS.
We desire to thank the following, who have been so kind to us during our recent bereavement: The Glassblowers' Union, Knights of Macedonia, members of the Lady Macabees, Fourth street school, friends and neighbors, the quartet for the beautiful music which they rendered, and also for the beautiful floral offerings. Mrs. J. Kauffman and son.

AN AKRON MAN'S SUCCESS.
How would you like to go through the rest of your life without a cold? That's what the people over in Akron are doing as the result of an Akron man's discovery of a cold cure of pronounced merit. It's called Ajax Cold Cure. Within an hour after the first dose it cures a fresh cold. If the cold is twenty-four hours old, it will take two or three doses to cure; if a week old, five or six doses will fix it. Local druggists put in a supply on the strength of what it is accomplishing elsewhere. It sells for twenty-five cents.

EARLY HISTORY OF NEWARK

The principal incidents of the early history of Newark occurred in the year 1825. These incidents have heretofore been fully portrayed by Licking county's historian, Isaac Smucker, Esq. At the risk of a repetition, however, I will proceed to describe several which I personally witnessed in my youthful days, and which I distinctly remember.

THE DIAMOND AFFAIR.

Peter Diamond was a young man employed at the Mary Ann furnace. Whilst at work with several other men he became involved in a quarrel with one of them. Another man named Mitchell interfering in the quarrel, Diamond, who was engaged in cleaning a rifle, struck him a desperate blow on the head from the effects of which he died in a few days. Diamond was arrested, brought to Newark, and had a trial before Judge Harper, who sentenced him to be hanged. All the preliminaries for the execution were completed. On the appointed day Diamond was led forth from the jail in charge of several companions. His coffin was placed in a wagon drawn by Colonel Gault's mules, and driven by one Grif Johnston. Diamond, dressed in a long white robe, walked immediately behind the wagon. At the head of the procession the military band, composed of the celebrated Odel family, with muffled drums, played the mournful dirge, "The Logan Waters." The procession moved to the place of execution, which was an open piece of ground between Church and Locust streets. This ground was bounded on the west side by a semi-circular embankment extending from the residence of Col Smythe to that of H S Sprague. This place was admirably adapted for such an occasion, as it afforded excellent seats for the thousands there assembled. Diamond, together with the sheriff, Colonel Gault, Rev Noah Fidler and Benjamin Briggs, ascended the scaffold. The rope was placed around his neck, a prayer was offered by Rev. Noah Fidler, and Colonel Gault stood ready, hatchet in hand, to cut the rope. At this moment Isaac Cool, the jailer, approached at full gallop on a white horse, bearing a reprieve from the Governor commuting the sentence to ten years imprisonment in the penitentiary. Diamond, together with the rest of the company, descended to the foot of the scaffold. A tremendous shout of joy arose from the vast multitude. The band now tore the black scarfs from their drums and struck up the lively air of the "Blackbird." A drunken man in the crowd being sadly disappointed at the result of the affair, having come, as he said, one hundred miles to witness the execution, expressed himself in a boisterous manner, and even proposed to hang a dog. At this moment Lawrence Van Buskirk approached the man, and with a stout cane leveled him to the ground, walking deliberately away without looking to see whether he was dead or not. In that crowd among those who were acquainted with the circumstances, there was great sympathy for Diamond. They believed that the crime did not constitute what the law defined a murder in the first degree, being done in the heat of passion and without a moment's reflection. But the principal reason for their sympathy was the fact that among the vast crowd assembled on that occasion, Diamond was undoubtedly the handsomest man. He was a young man of some twenty-two years of age, well-made, nearly six feet in height, with fair hair, blue eyes, and a clear, florid complexion. Diamond was conducted back to the jail in the midst of great rejoicing, the band playing the cheerful air of "The Girl I Left Behind Me."

THE HERON TRAGEDY.

On a bright Sunday morning in the autumn of 1820, being out in the middle of East Main street, I heard the loud report of a gun toward the northwestern part of the town. Very soon there came the news that Samuel Heron had been shot. Together with a great crowd I hastened to the place of the tragedy, which was a cornfield near the bridge crossing the South Fork on the Lancaster road. On arriving at the place I beheld the field full of people, and Heron, shot directly through the heart, was lying at full length on his back, between rows of standing corn. So close had the muzzle of the gun been to him that his clothing was burnt entirely through. Samuel Heron was a bachelor of some forty-five years of age, a remarkably innocent and inoffensive man, living alone in a log cabin close to the lock at the southern end of First street. He had tended that season a cornfield on the South Fork. Having been much annoyed by Shaver's hogs, he proceeded that morning to the field, accompanied by his one-eyed dog, Watch, who lived a quarter of a mile distant, hearing the squealing of the hogs, seized his double-barreled shot-gun and hastened to the field. Upon arriving there Shaver, who had the gun cocked and his finger on the trigger, endeavored to shoot the dog who was at that time worrying a hog among the standing corn. He was confronted by Heron, who, in his anxiety to save the dog, seized hold of the gun barrel and pulled it violently towards himself. Shaver, having his finger on the trigger the gun was discharged, and the contents a large load of shot, passed through the heart of Heron. Such was Shaver's version of the affair as, whilst walking back and forth through the corn in the utmost distress I heard him relate it immediately after his return from town, where he had been to deliver himself up to the law before Esquire Evans. No different version of the affair ever appeared, as no one witnessed it. A coroner's inquest was held on the ground by Captain Samuel Elliott. So great was the prejudice against Shaver in Licking county that he was obliged to procure a change of venue. The trial was held in Muskingum county, and Shaver was acquitted. Thomas Ewing and William Stanbery were his attorneys.

GRANVILLE NEWS

Granville, O., Dec 21—Mr. and Mrs. Vandenberg were the recipients of a delightful surprise on Monday evening, December 23. It was the occasion of their 23d wedding anniversary, and the members of the family determined that the event should be fittingly celebrated. To that end a large number of their friends and relatives were invited to participate in the enjoyment of the occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Vandenberg were away from their home during the early part of the evening, and when they returned they found the house filled with guests and a splendid supper in waiting. They were more than surprised and for a time were unable to comprehend the situation. They finally realized the nature of the gathering and then devoted themselves, assiduously to the task of entertaining the guests, 23 in number. These present were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thomas and son Ralph, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Walsh, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Everett, Mrs. Clara Evans and daughter, Katie, Mrs. John Griffin, Mrs. Onay Bohm, Mrs. Hub Williams, Mr. William Sandford.

Mr. and Mrs. Vandenberg were the recipients of a number of beautiful and useful presents. Although the guests skidded on a total surprise, and found the bride and groom in their every day clothes, they made them think of their younger days in the enjoyments of the evening. "Twenty-three" is a lucky number, and another meeting will be looked forward to with fond expectation.

COURTHOUSE NEWS

Court Adjourned.

Common Pleas court has adjourned until Monday of next week.

Habeas Corpus Case.

A somewhat peculiar habeas corpus case was brought before the Probate court. Mr. George W. Mick, a well known employee of the Everett glass works, had been arrested by Chief of Police Sheridan on a process issued by the state of New Jersey on affidavit of Mick's wife, who charged him with abandoning her and the family. Attorney S. L. James representing the defendant Mick, filed a writ of habeas corpus. Chief Sheridan brought his prisoner into court, and the defendant made a motion for a continuance in order to obtain evidence for himself. The case was continued to January 10 at 9 a. m. The defendant gave bond in the sum of $300 for his appearance in court.

Contempt Proceedings.

The Probate court heard the contempt proceedings in the case of Florence Driscoll vs. William F. Driscoll, suit for alimony. The defendant was ordered some time ago by the Probate court to pay certain attorney fees and alimony to the plaintiff, but up to this time has refused to do so. After hearing the evidence in the case and the arguments of the counsel the court adjudged the defendant to be in contempt of court and ordered him to be committed to the county jail until he had purged himself of the contempt. P. B. Smythe, attorney for the defense, gave notice that he would take the case to the Common Pleas court on exceptions and asked the court to fix a bond. The bond was fixed at $100 and the case will be taken to the Common Pleas court.
